12/11-12/15- Holiday workshop

12/21- Early Release, Pajama Day

Holiday Workshop

Holiday workshop is coming up the week of December 11th. Each kindergarten teacher will have a different themed "store" in their classroom and the children will be assigned to work in one of these stores making products to sell. They will also earn pennies for their work and get to shop at the end of the week. We will need many supplies donated as well as parent volunteers to help in our classroom. Please look out for a sign-up genius with a list of items needed and volunteer opportunities.

Looking Ahead

December 21st is our last day before the winter break. It is also an Early Release Day. Children can wear their pajamas to school that day!

Classroom Happenings

Reading- During class read-alouds we are working on asking and answering questions about key details in a text and identifying the number of syllables in spoken words.

Writing-We have worked on pattern writing where some part of each sentence on every page repeats with one detail changing. (ex- On Thanksgiving I like to have _____. Repeats on next page.)

Math-We have been working on more and less and will start to explore teen numbers and how they are formed using a ten frame and some "extras." This quarter students are expected to count to 40 by ones and tens and count to 40 from any starting point (not just one). They must also be able to read and write numbers from 0-20.

Social Studies-In December we will start a new unit on wants and needs. During the week of December 11th we will put our learning into practice with a collaborative learning opportunity called Holiday Workshop.
